

INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

MEMBERS ARE RECONVENED
WEDNESDAY FOLLOWING
WEEK'S ADJOURNMENT

RETURN FIVE INDICTMENTS

Deputed To Have Investigated Oct.
25 Robbery Of Fillmore Bank
Last Week

At least five indictments and possibly additional true bills were said to have been returned by the Putnam county grand jury Wednesday when reconvened after an adjournment following a two-day session last week.

Members of the grand jury also were to make annual inspections of county farm and county jail and a report on these institutions.

Rumors were current around the court house last week that an investigation of the Fillmore bank robbery of Oct. 25 was underway. These rumors were based on the appearance before the grand jury of bank officials and other residents of the Marion township community.

Two persons, a man and a woman, were said to have been identified as the couple who robbed the bank and kidnapped Amos Hunter, cashier of the institution. No affidavits were filed against them, however, and they have never been arrested although they have been reported seen in this county several times since the robbery.

It was also reported that the grand jury had been called to indict alleged bank bandits arrested in Tucson, Ariz., recently, all of whom have been identified as participants in the Central National bank robbery in Greencastle Oct. 23. Three of these men are now in prison at Michigan City while the fourth is under arrest at Crown Point awaiting trial for murder in connection with the slaying of an East Chicago policeman in a holdup.

Noon Deadline For Kidnapers

EDWARD BREMER, OF ST. PAUL,
MISSING FOR THREE WEEKS

ST. PAUL, Feb. 7, (UP)—Kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, 36, bank president, had until noon today to communicate with Adolf Bremer, the victim's father, without police interference.

The noon deadline was the starting time for police and federal government drives to apprehend the men who seized Bremer, three weeks ago today and demanded $200,000 ransom for his return.

After their first note notifying Bremer's family and friends of the kidnapping, no further authentic communications have been received, the elder Bremer said. Because blood stains were found on the seat cushions of the automobile from which Bremer was kidnaped, his family has sought evidence that he still was alive.

Unfleshing of police activity in the case was expected to bring about one of the most comprehensive man hunts since the kidnaping of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

SEEK TO SET ASIDE COURT JUDGMENT

GREELEY R. HUFFMAN FILES UNUSUAL COMPLAINT IN
CIRCUIT COURT

BRAZIL BANK IS DEFENDANT

Plaintiff Alleges Foreclosure Was Secured by Fraud Through Agreement

A complaint to set aside a court judgment and for a temporary injunction and restraining order, was filed in circuit court Wednesday by Greeley Richard Huffman, Belle Huffman and Richard Earl Huffman, against Alva L. Bryan, sheriff of Putnam County, and the Riddell National Bank of Brazil.

The plaintiffs seek to have a judgment of $9,047.50 obtained against them in circuit court Dec. 22, set aside on grounds it was procured by fraud, and a restraining order issued halting the sheriff from proceeding with sale of the mortgaged real estate to satisfy this judgment. The suit is an unusual action and was filed by F. S. Hamilton on behalf of the plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs allege they agreed that the bank could take judgment against them and a foreclosure had against the 235.1 acres involved, on a representation by the bank that it would consent that a rental contract be entered into with the Board of Trustees of the Indiana State Farm for a period of time, whereby the rentals would retire the judgment in about ten years. The plaintiffs allege that after such an agreement had been arranged, the bank president refused to enter into such an agreement unless the time was for one year, the period of redemption. On refusal of the plaintiffs to this alleged arrangement the bank is alleged to have proceeded to order an execution and sale of the real estate.

The plaintiffs say that since said execution was issued they have perfected an application for a loan with the Federal Land Bank of Louisville, to pay such part or all of said indebtedness as is just and right. The plaintiffs state that since it is the policy of federal and state authorities to assist farmers in retaining their real estate through such loans, that the court set aside the judgment and restrain the sheriff from selling the land on Feb. 10 as advertised. The plaintiffs thereby will be given opportunity, they state, to have the matter of their indebtedness adjusted by a county debt adjustment committee and to secure a loan from the Federal Land Bank.

BE APPOINTED

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 7, (UP)—A central agency to sell Indiana prison-made goods to all governmental units within the state will be established in Indianapolis, it was announced today by Pleas Greenlee, executive secretary to Gov. Paul V. McNutt.

The central agency will be conducted by a state sales agent and three salesmen, to be appointed by the governor.

A 1917 law which requires local government officials to buy prison-made articles and provides fines ranging from $100 to $1,000 for failure to comply, will be invoked to support the program, Greenlee said.

The sales program will be under the direction of a committee headed by Greenlee as executive officer. Other members are Louis E. Kunkel, warden of the state prison; A. L. RESIGNATION OF DALADIER IS ACCEPTED

FRENCH PREMIER QUILTS POST
IN EFFORT TO END FATAL
RIOTING

PARIS REPORTS BLOODSHED

Angry Citizens Battle Police And Military. Score Killed; Many Wounded In Outbreaks

PARIS, Feb. 7, (UP)—The historic Place De La Concorde was abandoned by the authorities to a milling, sabotaging, fighting crowd of 10,000 rioters today while President Albert Lebrun struggled to form a new government behind the guarded gates of Elysee Palace.

PARIS, Feb. 7, (UP)—Premier Edouard Daladier and his cabinet offered their resignations today to appease popular anger and prevent further bloodshed in riots which already have cost almost a score of lives in Paris.

President Albert Lebrun accepted the resignation at once and began the difficult task of finding a man strong enough to handle the grave problem of government.

The riots broke out anew this morning, only nine hours after soldiers, police, mounted republican guardsmen swept the remnants of rioters from the Place De La Concorde.

The rioters were not politically conscious groups of partisans but ordinary taxpayers, angered to fighting pitch by the police shooting.

They burned motor cars in the Place while Daladier was trying to decide how to avoid further shootings. This, combined with the resignation of the left radical ministers, impelled him to resign.

PARIS, Feb. 7, (UP)—A rabble army of 20,000 rioters stormed the bridgehead in the Place de la Concorde shortly after midnight today as a climax to a frenzied night of fighting in an effort to overthrow the Daladier government.

At 1:45 a. m. rioters sacked the Tuileries gardens. They overturned marble urns and carried stone benches into the streets, crushing them. Famous old statues dating back to the French revolution and the ill-starred Queen Marie Antoinette were overturned by the howling throng.

The rioters distributed printed sheets signed by the committee of public salvation similar to the revolution of 1793, calling for dissolution of parliament and substitution of a directorate.

The government leaders feared a nation-wide plot to seize power and overthrow the republic. They reported simultaneous uprisings in a dozen cities in the provinces.

At 2 a. m. the casualties estimates generally agreed on 12 dead and at least 1,100 wounded in the night's fighting. Of the dead, four were members of the mobile guard, one officer in the republican guards and seven rioters.

The Paris press this morning was bitter over the shootings. The Echo de Paris commented: "The Daladier government has provoked civil war." Senator Gaston Menier, radical socialist leader, was recognized by royalists during the riots and severely beaten and trampled.

The government of Premier Edouard Daladier, facing the chamber of deputies for the first time, against cries of "dictator," "another Hitler," and "a second Mussolini," forced the chamber to give him three votes of confidence. Fist fights broke out frequently among the semi-hysterical deputies. Outside, the howls of the mob echoed as an ominous background to the debate.

The rioters, during a night of terror, sought time and again to cross (Continued on Page Two)

The motley throng, increasing as the night progressed, danced and Scenes reminiscent of the French revolution occurred in the historic Place de la Concorde, as men and women surged back and forth in the flickering red glow of bonfires where motor cars and buses were wrecked and set afire.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Rod Deane, rich young playboy, marries Abby Ford, night club singer, against the wishes of his wealthy, aristocratic father. They go to Europe on a honeymoon. She returns to find her home all completed by her father, Harold Sigrist, a snooty, big game hunter. She employs Rod to give it up and go to work for his father. Just as he agrees, and they plan to spend an evening at home, Rod's father, who is a group of high-society friends, goes into the apartment to stay at home and an argument between Rod and Abby occurs. Rod leaves Abby alone in the apartment to go with Sigrist.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Rod came home that night—dead drunk—in the supporting arms of Sigrist. Sad because of the shameful plight of her husband, Abby reentered in her pity.

The next morning she went down to the Deane bank to ask Franklin Deane, Sr., to give Rod a job. It ended in an argument and Abby left—no better off than she was before.

Deane, Sr., apparently sensed something sincere in Abby's manner. "The girl seems to be really interested in Rod's welfare," he said. "Not at all," said Franklin, Jr. "It's just her way of dominating him."

"How do you mean?"
"Well, from what Sigrist tells me, she does nothing but try to make Rod feel inferior. The thing is psychological. She's conscious of having married above her and that's her defense against it."

The elder Deane thought a mo-

So, thirteen days after entering his father's employ, Rod and Sigrist were at the track—were here—were there—everywhere but at the office. The week that followed was one long spree. Abby, naturally, knew nothing of Rod's desertion. When he returned home late at night, he had a conference.

Then came Rod's birthday—twenty-three years old! Abby, happy as the proverbial lark, gaily set about the task of decorating their home for the surprise party. Wrapping presents—putting the candles in the cake—all the little chores that spelled peace and contentment for Abby. She stopped for a moment as the door bell rang.

Abby answered it. Her eyes opened wide with delight. "Steve!" She hugged him ecstatically. "Well, I'm glad you got around here at last! Where've you been all this time?"

Steve grinned. "I've been taken for a ride at the tracks. Where've you been? Haven't seen you in a month."

"Well," said Abby with mock seriousness, "it's a long story. Mr. Walsh."

After the laughing pleasantries, Steve sank into the soft cushions of the sofa. "All the comforts of home!"

"You wouldn't think so—the way you stay away."

"Well," answered Steve, "you've been kinda staying away from my place, haven't you?"

"Well, you see, said Abby a little importantly, "we haven't been going out much—since Rod started to work."

"Since when?" Steve's mouth hung open.

Abby laughed. "I guess it is a shock—Oh, everything's changed. Steve—no more drinking or running ment. "I see. Then it's a sort of victory for her—Rod's coming to work."

"That's all."

Abby returned home. Rod, with the aid of the butler, had managed to come out of his drunken stupor. Abby immediately went to her room and started to pull her personal things from the dresser drawers.

"What are you doing?" asked Rod.

"What does it look like?—I'm leaving you, Rod."

A frown creased Rod's forehead. "Don't be foolish. Don't do something you'll be sorry for later."

Abby went on stonily. "There's no room for me in your life, Rod. You've proved that, acting as you did last night."

"That was in the heat of argument, what you said. I only did that because of—"

"Abby!" went on packing. "Then you'll always go on doing it, Rod, because I'll always go on saying the same things. I can't change any more than you can, so I'm leaving you and your friend Sig to do what you want."

"I want you, Abby—"

"You said that last night."

"I mean it this time, Abby—I mean it then—only a fellow's liable to do anything when he's sore. I was thoughtful, that's all."

"That makes it just too bad for anybody who tries to help you."

"Nobody ever tried before. May-be that's why it's not easy to take."

Abby looked at him, her eyes filling with tears.

Rod went on. "If you leave me—I—well, I wouldn't know what to do—I'd be just running around in circles."

"I've been running around in circles ever since I married you. Abby broke into tears.

Abby—darling—don't. Don't cry."

"Do you think it's easy for me to leave you?" Abby asked plaintively. "You aren't going to leave me, honey—never mind what's happened before—I'll come through for you—If you'll just give me the chance."

"Don't," pleaded Abby. "say it unless you mean it."

"I do mean it, dear."

Abby looked into his eyes. "Then go down to see your father—and ask him for a job."

"Ask him—I'll tell him!"

Abby laughed through her tears as Rod took her comfortably into his arms.

Rod did see his father, and he did tell him—and Rod started at the bottom of the banking business, filing. To be concise, Rod was a file clerk. Abby, of course, was delighted, for it meant she could work for him, but she sensed the strained silence as Rod's "What's the matter?"

There was a startled look in Abby's eyes.

"Sit down, Abby. I wasn't going to tell you this—and I wouldn't tell you now if Steve weren't here. But I guess I might as well make a clean breast of it." Rod had come to a decision.

ISLAND GOVERNMENT PASSES EMERGENCY LAW FORBIDDING GENERAL STRIKES

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 7, (UP)—The government met mounting labor troubles last night by decreeing a social emergency law prohibiting general strikes.

A general strike was scheduled to start at midnight to last 24 hours, climaxing a day in which one person was killed and 16 wounded in a clash between 3,000 demonstrating students and police.

The decree provides for commissions with chairmen chosen from labor department aids, named by the secretary of labor to intervene in labor disputes. Three workers and three employers would be on each commission.

The decree recognizes the right of workers to strike, but demands that eight days' notice of strikes or lock-outs must be served on the secretary of labor and that the particular commission involved must render an arbitral decision within seven working days thereafter, with power to order

The law says that general strikes are illegal when "the stoppage or strike places the country's inhabitants in peril through lack of light, water, telephones, telegraph, medical and pharmaceutical assistance, fire fighting and transport services."

These services must be operated at all times, even if the workers on strike are government employees of different branches.

Missionary Society Meets With Mrs. Sutherland

A very interesting and enthusiastic meeting of the Missionary Society of the Christian Church was held at Mrs. John Sutherland's, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Elisha Cowgill, county secretary of Fillmore was one of the guests. She gave a report of a meeting composed of the county, district and state officers of the Missionary Society held in Indianapolis, January 27 and 28.

Mrs. Maude McNary of the Fillmore organization was appointed as representative of that society to bring a message to this meeting. Her message was full of inspiration and encouragement.

"World Call Week" will be observed from Feb. 25 to March 4. A play will be given at the church, Sunday evening, Feb. 25.

Devotions were in charge of Mrs. John Sutherland. She read Matt. 15: 30-31 and Matt. 14:35. She also read an article from World Call and a beautiful poem that had hanged on her sainted mother's kitchen wall for years as a prayer.

Mrs. Milo West reviewed the first chapter of the book on "Stewardship". The program topic was "Christ in the African Forest."

Miss Mary Woodrum in a very interesting way gave a description of the dark forest of Africa.

Mrs. Ralph West gave an account of the early work done in Africa.

There were 22 members and 10 guests attended the meeting. Four new members were added to the roll, Mrs. James VanHorn, Mrs. James Hartsaw, Mrs. Verner Snyder and Mrs. Fred Hixon.

During the social hour a miscellaneous shower was given Mrs. Lettie Shonkwiler by the Missionary Society and Tri-Angle girls.

Joan Sutherland, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sutherland brought the gifts to the bride in her little wagon which was beautifully decorated in lavender and white. Joan recited a poem which was written by her mother.

Mrs. Shonkwiler is pianist of the Missionary Society and the shower was given in appreciation of the services she renders.

HIGH SCHOOL CHAPEL

Junior and senior high school students were addressed by the Rev. Gust Carlson, pastor of the local Baptist church, in the regular convocation program Tuesday.

The speaker used the general theme of a challenge for a new day. He stressed the fact that the call to service as ministers and missionaries is almost unheeded today by the superior type of young men and women who are best fitted to carry on this work. He mentioned the fact that the depletion in the ranks of those who are willing to serve humanity unselfishly, is at least partly due to the general attitude on the part of modern youth, which fails to associate this calling with the same, virile red-blooded demand made by business and other professions.

In closing, the speaker appealed to the boys and girls of high school age to look forward to the challenge now confronting the world for the consecrated service of the very cream of the new generation.

OBITUARY

Unknown in halls of fame

Yet truly great

Our father.

Great in the greatest things of life,

Generous in kindly counsel; patience;

and in love.

Unsung in songs, but shrouded in loving hearts.

Our father.

James H. Arnold, the ninth child in a family of ten children, was born in Monroe township, April 27, 1855,

the son of Henry and Sally Bonty

Arnold.

He was united in marriage to Mary C. Smith, who preceded him in death almost three years ago. To this union were born three daughters.

Jessie dying in infancy; Grace, at home, and Nell the wife of Cecil

Bartlett.

His father passed away when he was fourteen years of age, leaving to him and a younger brother, with the guidance of their mother, the responsibilities of the farm.

It can be said he was a farmer for he truly enjoyed anything that pertained to the farm.

There is a poem called "The Last Leaf" which typifies his life as he is the last one in this family of ten children to pass away.

He leaves to mourn his loss the two daughters, the son-in-law and a little niece Dorothy, whom he took into his home and has helped to rear.

Also many nephews, nieces, and friends.

He heard a voice we cannot hear,

Saying you can no longer stay,

He saw a hand we cannot see,

Which beckoned him away.

WORKERS AT BRAZIL CCC CAMP ARE QUARANTINED
BRAZIL, Ind., Feb. 7—A quaran-

time has been placed on the entire membership of the local CCC camp at its barracks in the Car-Na-Bar building in East Brazil.
Captain Grafton, commander of the camp, stated that six cases of measles were discovered among the members yesterday and he thought it advisable to place the entire camp under quarantine in order to prevent the spread of the disease in the city. He stated, however, that he had instituted a working quarantine only and that all men who appeared to be in good health would be sent out on their work regularly to fields where they are doing erosion elimination work.
The boys will be kept off the downtown streets for at least two weeks by the order.
